From my system in windows 7 download W8 version supporting jdk 1.6.0_22_B60, if you are using windows 8 then download and install jdk 1.8, use update-alternatives to switch to one of the available JDK versions. e.g. sudo update-alternatives --config java sudo update-alternatives --config javac Change/fix your java JAVA_HOME environment variable. On Windows : Open any text/batch file editor, like Notepad (I use Notepad++) and add : set JAVA_HOME=D:\jdk1.8.0.10 On Linux/Unix : Open any text/batch file editor, like nano (I use nano) and add : export JAVA_HOME=D:\jdk1.8.0.10 See this article, to learn how to set JDK home on linux and windows. After doing this and restarting your machine you will find your local java version in the PATH. Note : If the JDK you are using is the latest version (1.8.0.10), then your PATH environment variable should have C:\Program Files\Java\jdk1.8.0.10\bin and no need to set any JAVA_HOME variable. This is the default value. To avoid typos or to have different JAVA_HOME locations, you should add any JDK path to your system PATH variable before the default one (C:\Program Files\Java\jdk1.8.0.10\bin). 3.
